Repositioning for Q3 2022

Sold or reduced positions (-1.0%)

- Trimmed Manulife
- Trimmed Pembina Pipeline

Bought or increased positions (+1.0%)

- Increased BCE
- Increased Bank of Montreal

Rationale

- It is quite possible that aggressive Central Bank tightening will push Canada and the US into recessions within our forecast period. Pent-up demand, excess savings and fiscal infrastructure spend will likely lessen the economic impact of higher rates and we expect many companies to weather a mild recession without lasting impact. However, it seems prudent to reduce risk in anticipation of market volatility continuing through the summer. For that reason, we continued to reduce Manulife and take some profits on Pembina (+20.1% YTD) to add to BCE and Bank of Montreal, which we expect to be more defensive. The Canadian Banks have higher capital and reserve levels than they did at this stage in previous cycles and remain very well diversified. Bank of Montreal has a very good credit track record.

Quarterly commentary

The second quarter of 2022 proved to be quite challenging across a variety of asset classes, with all major equity and fixed income markets posting negative absolute returns. While faring much better on a relative basis than the U.S. and International markets, Canada was certainly not immune to the broad-based pull back in both stocks and bonds. The Bank of Canada twice hiked the overnight target rate by 0.50% during the second quarter (for a total of 1%). Similarly, the Federal Reserve tightened their target range by a total of 1.25%, while also signaling more to follow. Within bonds, interest rates rose across all maturity terms as the bond market moved to price in higher expectations for tightening of monetary policy this year. Corporate spreads continued to widen, driven by rising interest rates, weak equity markets, and a growing concern about slowing economic momentum in the future. Canadian stocks were negatively impacted by very weak returns from Information Technology and Materials, while the Energy and Utility sectors were the strongest performing sectors on a relative basis. Global equities delivered negative returns as non-North American markets continued to be hurt by uncertainty surrounding the Russian invasion of Ukraine, as well as China Covid related shutdowns and commodity supply shortages. Industrials, Information Technology and Materials were the most negative, while Energy was the best performing sector on a relative basis. The Canadian dollar depreciated versus its U.S. counterpart during the quarter by 2.8%. The relevant index returns for the Portfolio in the second quarter were: Dow Jones Canada Select Index (-12.30%), the S&P/TSX Preferred Shares Index (-7.52%), the FTSE Canada Universe Bond Index (-5.66%), the FTSE Canada Short-Term Bond Index (-1.46%), and the FTSE Canada Corporate Bond Index (-4.83%).

The Portfolio declined -6.78% during the second quarter but was able to preserve capital relative to the benchmark decline of -7.34%. Over the one-year period, the portfolio returned -2.74% and outperformed the benchmark by over 5%. Outperformance compared to the benchmark during the quarter was largely driven by the tactical asset allocation decisions, notably the overweight to Canadian dividend equities. The corresponding underweight to fixed income further added value as a rise in short-term interest rates caused both Universe and Corporate bonds to decline sharply. Within the underlying components, the Canadian Dividend equities outpaced its benchmark, as did the preferred shares component. The core fixed income and corporate bond components modestly trailed their benchmarks as our longer-than-benchmark duration had a negative impact due to the rise in market interest rates. The recent introduction of commercial mortgages in Q1 has proved beneficial as this new asset class has a short-duration and a higher overall yield than traditional bonds.

Global growth slows but remains above longer-term trends supported by fiscal stimulus and a historically high savings rate. The manager expects that growth will be primarily driven by the consumer and government sectors, although supported by positive business investment. Unemployment will continue to fall and dislocations in the labour force should work their way out as the participation rate rises. Inflation pressure should peak in 2022 but remain above central bank targets due to supply chain issues, elevated commodity prices, and increasing labour costs. Significant dislocations in the labour markets with more job openings than available workers put upward pressure on wages. Structural forces (aging demographics, technology advancements, and a growing debt overhang) will continue as headwinds to long term inflation. 2022 will be a transition year as central banks raise administered monetary policy rates and start to reverse bond purchase programs. Global monetary policy evolves at different speeds as some central banks move to tighten while others maintain extraordinary easy policy. Above target price inflation will be the primary focus of central banks. Fiscal stimulus via direct consumer programs has mostly finished but infrastructure spending will continue to contribute positively to growth. In this environment, the Portfolio continues to be underweighted in fixed income and the manager has elected to hold some excess cash and commercial mortgages as a defensive measure. Within equities, the manager continues to favour Canada due its larger exposure to Energy and commodity related stocks.
